SUNDAY INTRODUCTIONS

First reading Isaiah 56:1, 6-7
Our reading should have a special appeal today. It shows the Jews, just returned from bitter Exile in Babylon, opening their arms to all peoples, thus widening the offer of grace.

Second reading Romans 11:13-15, 29-32
This reading goes a little bit in the opposite direction. In Rome, the non-Jewish Christians came to regard themselves as included in the grace of Christ but also as superior to God's first chosen people. Paul puts them right in a very important phrase: God never takes back his gifts or revokes his choice. This little phrase is a keystone for contemporary Jewish and Christian dialogue.

Gospel Matthew 15:21-28
Women get a somewhat low profile in the Gospels, so it is refreshing today to read this story of a woman whose love for her daughter and whose quick wit engage with Jesus very fruitfully. The story illustrates also the inclusion of Gentiles in the mission of the early church.
